

Graphene Capping for Advanced Interconnects

Kazuyoshi Ueno

Shibaura Institute of Technology, Japan

Graphene capping is attracting attention as a technology that can lead to lower resistance and higher reliability of copper, ruthenium, and other advanced nano-interconnects. I will review the history of graphene capping and discuss on the issues and recent trends. I will also introduce our study of graphene capping to advanced interconnect materials such as NiAl..